2027 WOMEN IN NEURORADIOLOGY LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT SCHOLARSHIP PROSPECTUS

INTRODUCTION

In 2012, the Foundation of the American Society of Neuroradiology, together with the American College of Radiology and the American Association for Women in Radiology, established an award intended to provide leadership development opportunities for women in neuroradiology.

As neuroradiologists must be leaders in their field, the primary focus of this scholarship award mechanism is to support mid-career women with demonstrated experience and promise for future leadership in radiology through administration, education, research and/or practice. The scholarship aims to provide the recipient with additional leadership and management skills as well as insights to enhance their individual opportunities for future advancement.

The scholarship is targeted towards women approaching transition from assistant to associate professor, or in the early stages of associate professorship if applying from an academic institution.
